Jan 30 2006 – 10:19 AM ET

Verizon Wireless has launched VZ Navigator, a rumored location based service for turn-by-turn directions. We first noted VZ Navigator earlier this month in a story about a [yet unannounced] child tracking service.

VZ Navigator allows users to see a map of their current location, find businesses and hear audible turn-by-turn directions to destinations.

VZ Navigator is compatible with the new Motorola V325 which was also announced today. It's available for download in the Get It Now virtual store beginning today for $9.99 for unlimited monthly access, or $2.99 for 24-hour use.
